The Oregon state flag is unique, because it has a different pattern on the reverse side, a beaver. In 1859 Oregon was the 33rd state admitted to the union .

Washington was admitted in 1889 as the 42nd state . Its green flag has the state seal in the center. A portrait by painter Gilbert Stuart was used in the seal design.

♥ Opening in fourth seat must result in a positive score. You already know the score to beat, the zero for a pass-out. Never talk about a pass out, it's usually depressing and will convince you to do something really stupid next time. Dave's RULES of (fun) BRIDGE

THE OREGON TRAIL (The Whitmans, from the DVD "The Oregon Trail")

Asstor, Stewart's boss, kept the trail discovery a secret, so it was many more years before a wagon train would make it to the Pacific Coast. In 1836, though people thought him crazy, Dr. Marcus Whitman, a Presbyterian missionary, his wife Narcissa, and three other missionaries, traveled west with a trading caravan. When the traders abandoned their wagons east of the Rockies, the Whitman party pushed on with their wagon, which flipped over several times. They righted the wagon, and later rebuilt it into a two-wheeled cart after the axle broke. Narcissa's encouraging letters were published nationwide, quieting skeptics who thought women were too fragile for such a trip. At Fort Boise (a supply point), Marcus finally agreed to abandon his rickety cart, and the group finished the last 200 miles of the journey on horseback. But more wagons were to follow.

Hiding a fit from partner is a grievous sin.

Steve Bloom, Bridge Bulletin, July 2009, p. 49

When you know what is best, always let your partner know ASAP.

Top Ten Goodwill Gestures

The Goodwill Committee at the 2008 Fall NABC in Boston suggested some of the small ways you can do your part to make the tournament a pleasant experience for all our players:

1. Greet and welcome opponents.
 2. Always say, "Director, please."
 3. Lead or place dummy before you write.
 4. Mentor a new player.
 5. Say, "Thank you, partner."
 6. Complement opponent's play.
 7. Discuss hands after the game.
 8. Accept defeat and victory with grace.
 9. Leave a tidy table.
 10. Smile often!
- Good luck at the bridge table!

Here's how the game of bridge got its name: In the 1890s, an early version called "bridge whist" allowed the dealer to name trump or to "bridge" this right to the dealer's partner. The "bridge" represents the interaction between two partners across the table.

Grant Baze's Six Guides (1985)

The bridge world lost a great player when Grant died on January 11, 2009 at age 65. He became the first player to win more than 3000 points in a calendar year in 1984. It was the first of his three Barry Crane Top 500 wins in a career that ended with more than 41,000 masterpoints, seven national championships, and four international titles.

1) Your partner is your best friend. Regard your partner with respect, affection, and tenderness. Part of your responsibility is to make his decisions as easy as possible. Always root for your partner to do the right thing. If he misplays or misguesses, sympathize and console; he hurts worse than you. Your partner will play better, you will play better, your results will be better. At the end of a session, one score appears, and it reflects how you and your partner performed as a pair.

2) Trumps speak. If you have good trumps... you should strive to bid in any auction. Good trumps often tip close decisions into trivial ones. First, good trumps are disaster insurance. Normally, the opponents can not destroy you if they can not gain trump control. Second, it is difficult for the opponents to know when they should be doubling if they do not have trump power. Third, the opponents will be much more inclined to take a push if they do not have trump cards. Fourth, the below are particularly valid here. The guide of total trumps applies to competitive auctions where the high-card strength is relatively even between the two pairs, perhaps within an 18-22 high-card-point range. The guide tells us we should bid to a level equal to the total number of trumps we have between the two hands (e.g., with 9 trumps in the partnership, bid to the three-level). The principle of concentration applies to hands that have the same distribution. This principle tells us that high cards concentrated in your long suits makes your hand stronger than high cards distributed at random amongst your suits, and much stronger than a hand where your high cards are concentrated in your short suits. As an example, AKxxx, Kxxx, xx, xx is a much better hand than xxxxx, xxx, Ax, AK. The principle of in-and-out evaluation says secondary cards in partner's suit and primary cards in outside suits is a better hand than primary cards in partner's suit and secondary cards in outside suits. Secondary cards (Queens and Jacks) not in partner's suit may be valueless, but if they are in partner's suit, they are almost certainly valuable. Primary cards (Aces and Kings) are likely to be useful whether they are in the trump suit or not. In other words, Qxx in partner's suit with an outside Ace is better than Axx in partner's suit with an outside Queen. The second derivative of this principle is that secondary cards in trumps are better than secondary cards in outside suits. (to be continued)
